The will of Mrs. Mary Huthmakr, 82-year-old Kirkwood widow, eaving about $31,000 to the Masons, was held invalid by a jury in Circuit Judge Mulloy's court at Clay-ton yesterday in 25 minutes' delibmony.

A nephew, Chester Walkenhorst, 5245 Minerva avenue, and a niece, Mrs. Amelia Rex, 5001 Pernod avenue, had sued to break the will on the ground that Mrs. Huthmaker was not mentally capable. Witnesses for the defense described her as shrewd and alert, while those for the plaintiffs declared her faculties had begun to fail in 1927. Suit in equity to set aside a Suit in equity to set aside a deed, conveying an 80-acre Kirkwood tract to the Masonic Home of Missouri, is to be filed, Julius Drucker of counsel for Mrs. Rex announced. Harry Felberbaum, attorney for the Furmans, said they would appeal.

The Furman brothers, locally well known swimmers and skaters, presented witnesses who testified that Campbell had befriended them over a period of years, sending them to school, buying their clothing, and supplying them with money. There was no testimony that he had ever adopted them, but will contest.

The deed conveyed property valued at more than $100,000 for a home for children. In return the Masons built a modern home for Mrs. Huthmaker and were to pay her a life income commensurate with reasonable interest on the value of the gift. The transaction was discussed at length in testimony that he had ever adopted them, but estate representatives of the donor.

St. Louis Police Board and the (the beer law) is the subject of a State Highway Patrol, with instructions to furnish an escort. He told that violence will be resorted Tate to confer with these depart ments on his police requirements.

The petitions must be filed by July 24, which is 90 days after the adjournment of the 1933 Legislature, which passed the two measures. The beer bill carried an emergency clause and became oper-ative last April 7. The Weeks bill is effective July 24, and Gov. Park s preparing his proclamation for a State-wide election on Aug. 19 to elect delegates, and for a ratifica-tion convention here on Aug. 29.

Attorney-General McKittrick and the Governor believe that neither act is subject to the referendum Tate has stated a mandamus suit would be filed in Supreme Court to mpel Secretary of State Brown to accept the petitions and certify the referendum proposals to the ballot of the election in November, 1934. if he refuses to accept them when they are filed.

GETTING READY FOR REPEAL VOTE

The question of ratification of the prohibition repeal amendment actually will be decided by Missouri voters at the polls Aug. 19 when they may vote for a delega-tion favoring adoption of the twenty-first amendment which re-peals the eighteenth amendment or a delegation opposing it. A majority vote carries the election. The delegation thus selected as a unit, either unanimously for or against repeal, will meet at a convention at Jefferson City, Aug. 29, and go through the perfunctory cedure of ratification

Names of the members of the elegations will not appear on the ballot. Two wet and two dry delegates will have been named from each of the State's 34 senatorial districts at district meetings to be held July 28.

The meeting places for senatorial district conventions were announced yesterday by Gov. Park for St. Louis, Jackson County (Kansas City) and the twenty-fifth district of which St. Louis County is a part.

The senatorial district meetings will be made up of four wet and four dry delegates selected at county meetings to be held at 11 a. m., July 27, in counties of less than 350,000 population and in senatorial districts in St. Louis and Jackson County by one wet and one dry delegate chosen at precinct meetings to be held July 26. County meetings will be composed of two wet and two dry delegates chosen from each precinct July 26.

WOMAN DRIVER BY MOTOR TRAIN

Mrs. Wilma Crawford Rexford Apparently Failed to Hear Bell and Did Not Slow Down.

Mrs. Wilma Crawford Rexford, 24 years old, Alton, was killed late yesterday when an automobile she was driving was hit by a Chicago & Al-ton motor coach train at the Alby ton motor coach train at the Alby street crossing in Alton.

The accident occurred at 4:05 o'clock, as Mrs. Rexford was driving from her home, 632 East Fifth street, to the home of her father at 1500 Belle street. She died at St. Joseph's Hospital four hours later of skull injuries and a crushed right area.

A witness said Mrs. Rexford did not slow down as she approached the crossing and apparently did not hear the warning bell or see the train, approaching at a moderate speed. The automobile was carried about 350 feet and demolished un-der the front platform of the motor coach. Mrs. Rexford was thrown clear of the weeksge about 300 clear of the wreckage about 300 feet from the crossing.

A sister attracted to the scene from the Crawford home a block away recognized Mrs. Rexford's away recognized mrs. Rexford's a silvners on the right-of-way and slippers on the right-of-way and identified the young woman at the hospital.

Mrs. Rexford is survived by her husband. Leo, an employe of Laclede Steel Co. at Alton.

TAKING IT ON THE ROAD.

With the World Economic Conference in the throes of indecision as to its future, some bright mind has suggested that it transfer its sessions to America, since this country holds the key to its activity. The London run obviously is waning in popularity, so it would not be such a bad idea to take the production on the road. The all-star cast might well be kept intact, with its 3000 assorted Prime Ministers, Chancellors, financial experts, economists and secretaries, together with the press section, including that intrepid head-line hunter, James J. Walker. To land the spectacle properly on our shores and our front pages, it might be arranged to have Gen. Balbo fly the per sonnel over, in mass formation. Then the American tour: two weeks on Broadway, one each in other cities, tapering off to one-night stands on the kerosene cir inforced with stars more familiar to the popular audience, such as Lunt and-Fontanne, Gable and Harlow, Tom Mix's horse and Mickey Mouse. We predict a long and successful run for the show, since the Amer ican public has always appreciated good, loud oratory stirring climaxes and deft acrobatics.

The Four-Power Pact

The four-Power pact, which has just been signed in Rome, may be said to mark the end of the European political crisis of last spring. This crisis was produced by the rise to power in Germany of the pack for warrs openly declared that men who had for years openly declared that they would, if necessary, use force to bring about a revision of treaties. How seriously this threat was to be taken depended upon the attitude of Mussolini. For years back, Fascist Italy has favored revision. If Fascist Italy aligned itself with Nazi Germany, carrying with it Hungary, Bulgaria and per-haps Austria, Europe would have been di-vided into two hostile and irreconcilable camps. Here lay the danger.

But almost instantly there was a profound reaction. British opinion became united in an implacable opposition to any extension of the Nazi influence beyond the present frontiers of Germany. The French alliances in Central Europe, which had gradually beof the danger. Russian diplomacy became definitely more friendly to Poland and to the other new nations of Central Europe. Finally, when the Nazis began to threaten the independence of Austria, the Italians saw that, by aligning themselves with Ger-many and by encouraging the Nazi ambitions, they were running the risk of creat-ing a new Germany which, when it had absorbed Austria, would be the neighbor of Italy and would in all likelihood begin to press next for an outlet to the Adriatic through the Italian port of Trieste. Confronted with the situation, Mussolini Confronted with the situation, Mussolini chose to practice a realist diplomacy. The four-Power pact is the visible sign of his decision to pursue a policy of stability rather than a policy of adventure. The pact recognizes Germany as one of the four great Powers of Europe, and concedes to Germany that moral equality which she ought never to have been denied.

But at the same time, the pact completely rejects the idea that Europe can be divided into two groups of powers, and it re-rejects the idea that Europe can be di-vided into two groups of powers, and it re-commits Germany and all the others to the whole system of treaties set up to preserve the peace. Thus, under Mussolini's leader-ship, Hitler has accepted for Nazi Germany a network of treaties which the Nazi propaganda has consistently scorned. The most important aspect of the pact, however, is that a path has been definitely opened for a better understanding between France and Italy. Not only has Fascist Italy drawn back from an alliance with Nazi Germany, but it has moved forward to a point where it is not impossible that a way will be found to compose, at least for a time, the rivalry between France and Italy in Central Europe.

The peace and prosperity of Central Europe depend upon an understanding be-tween France and Italy. Without this understanding, the new nations of the Danube Valley, which have arisen out of the wreck of the Hapsburg Empire, cannot hope to make economic arrangements which will permit them to prosper. For 10 years, every arrangement which these new nations might have reached has been vetoed by one or the other of the great Powers. If there years other of the great Powers. If these vetoes can be withheld, there is hope for Central Europe. They will be withheld only if France and Italy can understand each

The next few months will show whether this is possible. In the meantime, the posi-tion of the new nations of Central Europe has been considerably strengthened by the conclusion of a series of treaties with which are more precise than any that have been written since the war, greatly reduce anxiety all along the whole European fron-tier of Russia. In so far as treaties are to be relied upon, they are a new barrier against the revision of frontiers by military Thus, the net result of the crisis of the spring has been to confirm and solidity the existing territorial boundaries. For the time being, the idea of revision has been put entirely aside. /It has been recognized that, in fact, the only kind of peace that Europe can have is peace based on the existing frontiers. The alternative would be war, and once that alternative was clearly visualized in the crisis of last spring, revision was rejected, not only by France and allies, who have always rejected it, but by Great was rejected, not only by France and allies, who have always rejected it, but by Great Britain, by Russia and by Italy as well.

America Grows Housing-Conscious

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Tom the Cieve I is more than half a century since George I Peabody, American-born merchant, erected the model dwellings which sought to conquer the London slums. Not very long after that, the slums of American cities were put on the defensive, mainly through the vigorous campaigning of the late Jacob A. Riis. Since that time, many far-sighted men and women have carried on the crusade against housing conditions which protect and invite crime, vice and delinquency. The results achieved so far are encouraging, but not extensive. In this country, they have been dependent upon philanthropic interest. There has been little or no large-scale attack.

The slums of Claveland and other large sittles have spread. They have infected our familiar billevied areas.

Col. Cooper on Russia

Col. Hugh L. Cooper in a Letter to the New York Times.

N your issue of July 9 there appears as A article by Edwin L. James, in which American recognition of the U. S. S. R. is discussed. Mr. James is usually very accurate, but has been so badly misinformed in one particular as to call for a reply from me. The article referred to states that "Col Cooper suggested to Secretary Stimson that the United States send an official High Comnissioner to Moscow, to act as a sort of uper-counsel in handling commercial relations." This statement is wholly erroneous.

Every well-informed person who believed n the assumption of normal relations beween the U.S. S. R. and the United States thew from the beginning of Mr. Hoover's administration to the end of it that Mr. Hoover was irreconcilably opposed to recognition of Russia, and as I am not in the habit of butting my head against a stone wall, I did not talk to Mr. Hoover or any member of his Cabinet on this subject.
Furthermore, I think the idea of expecting the U. S. S. R. to receive a High Commissioner is ridiculous. Every major country in the world has accorded full recognition to the Soviet Union. These countries are con-sequently in a favored position to capture the lion's share of the potentially enormous Russian market. For us to take a secondary place in competition for this trade by denying recognition is exceedingly poor judgment. After holding aloof from normal relations all these years, for us to adopt such a weak course seems to me to be absurd and lacking in common sense. Early in April, I was invited by President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull to present my views on the recognition of the U. S. S. R. I recommended to both that the only practical course to pursue is outright recognition, to be followed by a well-considered trade agreement, fully protecting the interests of both countries. I filed this recommendation, with supporting reasons, in writing, with Secretary Hull on April 4.

It should by now be apparent to even should by now be apparent to even the most casual observer of world affairs that a stable government of 160,000,000 people cannot be ignored much longer if we are to achieve world economic recove bility and to maintain world pe

DISARM THE GUNMEN.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Law officers of the Federal Government have decided not a day too soon to launch a relentless campaign for the extermination of the menace of armed violence and defiance of law. Conditions created by the unchecked operations of the summen have rightly been described by Attorney-General Cummings as "a challenge to American civilization which must be met," and he wisely decides that the first duty to be performed is the disarmament of the gummen. This will call for the co-operation of the states, but he is confident that the combined police powers of the nation and the 48 states will prove competent to deal with the problem.

One of the first avenues of approach must be to ascertain where the gangsters and gummen obtain the weapons and especially how they get possession of machine gunk. These weapons have no legitimate use except in the hands of the military author-

These are poor habits, but young sters go from one thing to another. The best way is not to notice if it doesn't go too far; but after this (they sometimes start these things to show off and be noticed) you would better definitely deprive him of something he wants—and hold it as a reward for good behavior.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

SHALL be ever so grateful to you if you will be kind enough to advise me what to do in this . Two years ago my mother and I visited the home of a young man who was my friend. Since then I have written once or twice to his mother, although the young man and I are on the "outs" and I have not written to him or heard from him for almost two years. On my vacation I shall be in a neighboring city and as their home is but 30 miles from the place I will be, I feel the proper thing for me to do would be to pay his mother a visit. I liked his mother and father very much and in her letters his mother was very friendly. My mother will again accompany me on this trip. Now here is what I want to ask, would it be proper for me to bring a gift to this woman? If so, will you please, please suggest some-thing. 3WENDOLYN ANN.

Perhaps it would be as well not to take a gift to this boy's mother. It might, or might not, be misinterpreted. While you are there, possibly you will see some pleasant little attention you can show her or, after your return home, if she has been very nice to you and in-vited you to her house, you might send her some little personal gift. You can judge better of the state of you that a few years does not mean feeling all around, after you have a lifetime, as measured by the or-seen them all once more.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON THE EVERPRESENT COPPER PIN

Senor Elias Jimenez, who is a member of the Municipal Police Force of Trinidad, Cuba, has constantly carried a copper pin under his tongue for the last 28 years. He does not remove the pin before retiring, or eating, drinking, nor at any time what soever. HEAD OF THE TABLE

A FINE old Scotch story tells of a too modest guest at a Highland banquet. He hept refusing to sit in the place of honor, until his host, losing patience, said plainly: "Sit where I tell ye! Dinna ye ken that wherever Lochiel sits, that's the held of the table?"

A lady arrived too late at church when the late Dr. Van Dyke was preaching, and found Dyke was preaching, and found every pew taken. An usher offered her a seat on the pulpit stairs, but she hesitated: "Won't I be conspicuous." The usher replied, "No, madame; nobody is conspicuous when a great preacher is in the pulpit. It is quite safe to sit on the pulpit stairs."

pulpit stairs." A friend of mine was a hodcarrier when I first met him, honest, inarticulate, hard-working. When he died he was one of the great crators of Amer-ica, able to hold an audience in the hollow of his hand, as if under a spell, for two hours and more, as I have seen him do. During 20 years I saw his life unfold like a flower, and an ordinary man became ex-traordinary in his power and charm. It was thrilling to me.

No one can tell in what such power consists, least of all those who possess it. It is an indefinable quality which, like magic, gives some people an unexplained ascendency over us. It is what we mean when we say that a person has personality, or does not have it. But what is personality? No-body knows; it is just a word for a mystery.

But one thing I do know about it. My hod-carrier friend, who became so unusual in his power of persuasion, was made great by devoting himself to a great cause. A great faith, a great purpose, a great love drew out the lines of his life. Until we get out of ourselves and lose our lives in something greater than ourselves, we cannot do great work. Great oratory, great music, great living make us feel indi-vidually little but collectively great. A brilliant talker of a vital personality may crush our vanities and make us seem of no account; but they also em-body our dream of beauty and power and graciousness of soul.

All familiar things they touch

> My dear Mrs. Post: Will you please explain the proper servi-of coffee, both formal and info-mal, with and without a butler?

Answer: In the most formal service, a footman proffers a tray on which are cups and saucers and a bowl of broken rock candy or lumps of sugar. The one who is served puts much or little candy in a cup and takes the cup and sau off the tray; the butler then pours coffee into it. In the service most often encountered today, the butler (or waitress), holding the coffee pot in the right hand, proffers the tray on the flat of his (or her) left hand. The one who is served puts suga (or rock candy) and occasional! cream into a cup; the butler or waitress pours the coffee. The person served then takes the cup, which with the coffee spoon is, of course, on the saucer. A very fas-cinating after-dinner coffee ritual was that of the old South, when coffee was burned in brandy and a dozen different spices. It was a charming custom, but too time-taking to fit in with the present-day American localities, and necessarily in all servantless houses, a coffee tray is put down on a low stand or coffee table beside the hostess, who pours it exactly as she would pour afternoon tea. (Copyright, 1933.) DELIGHTFUL WELCH WAY

Should you now show your club support by raising to four clubs? I think not. That would be too optimistic a bid, giving your partner no freedom to sign off short of game. It is true that his bidding, by breaking freels ground after your-differed your hearts (the only game contract you can stand), and I would want to make him reach it only after further discouragement from me, because he is not likely to make game unless he can keep bidding in face of my warnings. I would therefore bid three hearts over three clubs; if my partner bid four clubs or three no trumps, I would naturally take him back to four hearts and hope for the best. The play of the shand will depend mainly on his spade holding: whether we must lose one, two or three tricks in that suit. I limit our diamond losers to one; the spades are the key suit, With three little spades, the opening bidder should not persist beyond my three-heart sign-off. With x x or K x x in spades, a heart game would appear likely to him, assuming that his hearts are good—A K J x x-and that the club suit he had bid secondarily was A K J x or A Q J x. My club support for him is unimportant—if I am long in them the suit will clear up and he will have a finesse to lose no tricks in the suit. If I am short, he can ruff the suit out.

the law calls bankrupt! I have a fine villa for my parents in Italy, plenty clothes (and lots of big shoes, of course) but, outside those things, Primo actually is pennyless. In fact, he is in debt, I say to myself often with a shock that drives away smiles. So I must keep on working; and that means box-

He knocked out former champion Schmeling early in June and many seem to think he can kayo Carnera also. Eh bien, that will be decided later-this September, I earnestly hope, though the time and details of that match are up to my man-

I was close up to the ring when Baer stopped the German in the tenth round with right-hand smashes to the head. He had used such shots in the first and second rounds to stagger his opponent Then he seemed to coast for sev eral sessions until he sent Schmeling reeling again near the end of ninth with those same hard overhand rights. I think he prepared the German for such rather wild clouts by outmauling him in close. He handled Schmeling about the same way I did Sharkey, spinning him about with apparent ease. Can you picture American Max doing that to the "Man Mountain?" Perthe interest in our coming fight.

My, what "roasts" they gave me—why I thought, at first, my interpreter was reading to me from an American paper! Monsieur See once considered taking me to Australia but the plans fell through. Then, too. I would through. Then, too, I would like to see Japan, where box-ing is not yet a popular sport but where the average small man makes such a wonderful warrior. I would also like to have a look at China. And tour Russia, perhaps, where they tell me so many giants grow. But first, I must travel about the United States again if conditions are right and, after my first title defense, visit some big sports centers in Europe and South America.

Of course, if I were not "broke," here's one champion who would hustle home for at least six months to celebrate with a great house-warming in the new Villa Carnera. My parents and twin brothers, many relatives and the neighbors—Sequals must enjoy such a fete. But not for the present. Primo must take to the road—not as a tramp or a mere freak, but as champion of the world—to do honor to Italy, his own home and himself. That idea makes me feel very happy, though "broke." Synopsis. Philo Vance, expert in solving crime mysteries, finds himself confronted with a real mystery when he is called in to investigate the supposed suicide of Archer Coe, wealthy collector of Chinese ceramics. District Attorney Markham acquaints Vance with the circumstances as Markham has learned them over Markham has learned them over the telephone from Gamble, Coe's butler. Gamble said that he had been told by Raymond Wrede, one of Coe's friends, to get in touch with Markham, Getting no response when he had knocked on his employer's bedroom door, Gamble said he had looked through the keyhole. Testerday we left two men arguing at the foot of a mountain of solid gold. One had his share and was recommending the other go and get his too. In this story the gold is symbolic; it isn't metal, but is meant to represent all the good things of life, of which nature provides more than we can possibly use. There is more than enough if everything in this world for all the people in it—that is the golden. mountain of this fable. And what did those men do? "I don't believe you," said the newcomer when told about the vast quantities of gold to be had. "You're just trying to fool me about what you have." And they started fighting "ever one man's little share in the presence of a bountiful supply for all. (More tomorrow.)

lames W. Melton and Irving J. Koenig, 21-Year-Old Novice Pilots, Were Co-Owners of Craft 'Grounded' as Unsafe.

Machine Apparently Went Into Spin Near Railroad Station at Orchard Farm, After Leaving Lambert

Two flyers from Lambert-St.Louis field were killed at 8 a. m. today n a crash at Orchard Farm, nine niles north of St. Charles, in an unlicensed airplane which Manager Girton of the municipal airport and ordered grounded yesterday as dangerous to fly.

The victims of the crash:

James W. Melton, 21 years old, 236 South Central avenue, Clayton, pilot of the plane.

Irving J. Koenig, 21, 4220 John avenue, a machinist employed at the Curtiss airplane factory.

The crash occurred as the plane pproached a smooth stubble field or a landing not far from the Burtington station where Jack Allen, the agent, 4916 Emily avenue, was watching the craft, thinking his friend, Koenig, was dropping in at Orchard Farm to visit him, as he often had promised to die often had promised to do.

"I was watching them as they came down toward the field," Allen said to a Post-Dispatch reporter.
"When they were about 100 feet from the ground the plane seemed to slow up and then fall off in a kind of a spin. I did not see it crash because a field of tall corn

as in the way." Koenig was dead when taken Flye seat. Melton, in the rear seat, was inconscious and died on the way o St. Joseph's Hospital at St. Charles. Both victims of the crash were licensed private pilots. The plane was owned by Koenig and Ernest Muse, employe of a grocery at 1604 Cass avenue.

Lambert Field pilots who visited opinion that the plane fell off into a spin after the pliot allowed it to lose flying speed while approaching the field for a landing. In the vesch crash the plane was demolished.
Field Manager Girton said he had ordered Koenig and Melton hot to fly the plane from Lambert-St. Louis Field because it was regarded by pilots generally as not airworthy and dangerous to handle because of its tendency to flet similar Receives of dency to flat-spinning. Because of lits characteristics the plane had refused a Department of Comvery merce license and simply bore an identification number.

Melton had been flying about three years, but still lacked the 200 three years, but still lacked the 200 hours' flying time necessary for a transport license. He was graduated from Clayton High Sheool in 1929, and resided with his brother, Walter A. Melton Jr.

Koenig was the son of George Koenig, a broom factory superintended, and resided with his parents and sister, Dolly, at 4220 John avenue. For the past month he had been employed as a mechanic on the night shift at the Curtiss airplane factory at the municipal airport. He finished his work at 4:30 a. m. today, and took off from the field more than three hours later to go to Orchard Farm. ROOSEVELT AGAIN STAYS AWAY FROM DESK TO GET OVER COLD

Cancels All Engagements for Day, Including Luncheon With Ethioplan Envoy.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—President Rooseveit stayed away from his office one more day today at the suggestion of his physician, in order fully to recover from the indisposition that began Monday.

He was ready to return to his desk, but Dr. Ross T. McIntire, of the Naval Hospital, suggested another day of relaxation.

Marvin H. McIntyre, a secretary to the President, said Mr. Roosevelt had a slight cold, but had no
